

III Congreso Internacional de PROLINCA: Dos décadas de impacto en la lingüística centroamericana

FIRST CALL FOR PAPERS

The Universidad Nacional, through the School of Literature and Language Sciences and the Central American Linguistics Program (PROLINCA), is pleased to invite the national and international academic community to participate in the III PROLINCA International Congress, held in celebration of our twentieth anniversary.

This meeting aims to reflect on the evolution, achievements, and challenges of linguistic studies conducted in the region over the last two decades, bringing together researchers, educators, and students interested in the linguistic reality of Central America.

Event information

- Date: October 21st through 23rd, 2026
- Venue: Facultad de Filosofía y Letras, Universidad Nacional (UNA), Heredia, Costa Rica.

Themes

Original papers on studies of Spanish, Indigenous languages, sign languages, and Creole languages of the Central American region are invited in the following areas:

1. Phonetics and Phonology
2. Morphology
3. Syntax
4. Applied linguistics for language revitalization
5. Application of ICT and AI in linguistic studies

Submission of proposals

Interested parties are invited to submit their paper or poster abstracts (maximum 300 words) by completing the official proposal submission form here.

Presentations may be delivered in Spanish, English, or any endangered language of Central America.

Important dates

Abstract submission dates From February 1st, 2026, to May 15th, 2026

Notification of acceptance May 31st, 2026

Registration and participation are completely free of charge.

For more information: prolinca@una.ac.cr